

As long as you try

Gabriele Ebbighausen

As long as you try
to impress others,
you are not convinced
of your own strength.

As long as you strive
to be better than others, you are doubting your own worth.

As long as you try
to elevate yourself
by lowering others,
you are questioning your own greatness.

Who is in peace with oneself doesn't have to prove anything to others.

Who knows one's own worth doesn't need validation.

Who knows about one's own greatness lets others keep theirs.